Washable Silks With Pretty Names Despite Their Dull Coloring Will Delight the Children This Season, as They Have Long Been the Joy of "Grownups" in Frocks.

Like the whispering of spring is the rustle of the little silk frocks which this season the children are wearing. Silk has been so long a favorite of grown-ups and, this year especially, so popular, that Dame Fashion has seen no reason why, from some of the soft taffetas and washable silks, the kiddies cannot be suitably attired. A silk that is washable, as so many are nowadays, is quite as economical as any other fabric and made up in a simple style can be utilized for various occasions. The colors which dominate all the fabrics for children's clothes are like those of their elders, decidedly dull in tone. All the colors seem to be brushed with gray, which though seemingly not in accord with the childlike spirit, are, nevertheless, extremely pretty, and in the full pastel tones which have a chalky tint are given flower names which alone would insure their way to the hearts of all. "Tea-rose," "cedar," "physalis" and "orchid" are only a few of the flower names, while "moss," the merest whisper of gray; "blossom," the loveliest of pinks lightly brushed with amethyst; "sunset," an exquisite yellow tone; "old china," "hazy," and "spray" bring to mind the loveliest of colors.

What a childish delight is the frock pictured at the left in which taffeta silk in dull Holland blue is used for the tiny waist part! Though it disregards its prerogatives as sleeves, it drops enough over the shoulder line to be seen below the very wide ruffled collar which finishes its neck. The full puff sleeves attest their relationship to the collar, in both quantity and quality of fabric, for they are full too, and of Georgette tulle in blue to match the bodice, but in a paler shade. Though the bodice of silk would strive for a normal waistline, it is foiled by a ribbon which winds its way in an out and in under each arm in languid bows. These offer a pretty trimming to the plain skirt of Georgette tulle, which, in order to be full enough for the mode, must needs be gathered slightly on to the taffeta upper portion. Three tucks in place of a hem may further elaborate the frock, as hand sewing is always appreciated on youthful clothes. There are so many stripe materials, which are constantly used effectively for grown-ups, but avoided for the youngster, which may need their lengthening or broadening qualities, according as the stripes are laid—quite as much as their mothers. A chubby tot with a full chest would look a bit slimmer in a frock made like the one pictured at the right, with stripes running lengthwise to the waistline. On the skirt they run roundways to accentuate the fullness and flare. Rose pink striped in white would be adorable tied with rose velvet ribbons and completed at the neck and sleeves with sheer white chiffon cloth.

KNIFE VICTIM DYING, SAYS MAN ARRESTED BY POLICE IS FRIEND

Kirke Hints He Knows Who Stabbed Him, but Refuses to Tell.

A man giving the name of Thomas Kirke, twenty, a clerk of No. 299 Madison Avenue, is dying in Harlem Hospital from knife wounds in the neck, head and body. Frank La Mor, also twenty and a clerk, living at No. 79 East One Hundred and Nineteenth Street, is held in East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Street Station. The stabbing took place on One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Street near Park Avenue early this morning.

Kirke approached Police on Meade on One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street at 2 o'clock and remarked: "I think I've been stabbed" and collapsed. He was hurried in a taxicab to the hospital. Just after Meade had reported the case at the station.

Police Officer Dunn brought in La Mor, one of three men he had arrested after being attracted by the noise of a fight in One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Street.

La Mor was taken to the hospital and identified as a friend by Kirke. Kirke, however, refused to say who had done the stabbing. Told he would probably die, he replied: "That's all right. I'll send you a wire."

Police Officer Dunn picked up the overcoats and hats of the two men who escaped, but no knife was found.

The May Manton Fashions

WHETHER you are considering a summer costume that will be adapted to sports or one for general morning wear, this design will serve you well. The skirt is circular, flaring abundantly at the lower edge after the latest fashion. Here it is made of a plaid material cut bias and both plaids and stripes are peculiarly effective treated in that way. The seam is made at the front to enhance the effect. For plain material the seam may be made either at the front or at the back and there will be materials of some width and of some sorts that will be well to cut on the cross. However, if made, and of whatever material it is made, the skirt is one of the simplest possible, there being only the one seam to sew. When the seam is made at the front, however, there is an appealing cut over the left hip for the plucker. The blouse is an exceptionally becoming one, for it shows both tucks and gathers at the shoulders. Such a combination means good and becoming lines and consequently the model is a favorite. In this case, it is made of white handkerchief linen and is a favorite. The material of the skirt, trimmed with merchised linen and is a favorite. The material of the skirt, trimmed with merchised linen and is a favorite.

For the medium size the blouse will require 2 1/2 yards of material 27 inches wide, 2 1/2 yards 36, or 2 yards 44. For the large size, 3 1/2 yards 27, 3 1/2 yards 36, or 3 yards 44. The blouse pattern No. 8782 is cut in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure, and the skirt No. 8905 in sizes from 24 to 32 inches waist measure. No. 8782 (with basing line and added seam allowance). BLOUSE WITH TUCKED FRONTS, 34 to 42 bust measure. No. 8905 (with basing line and added seam allowance). CIRCULAR SKIRT, 24 to 32 waist measure.
